The Beginning of Something New

Hey guys. So I'm going to attempt to write a Bloom/Helia story. It's my favorite pairing and there are not enough of these to me. So I would love and appreciate any and all ideas other than to change the pairing which I will not do under any circumstances. By the way I'm typing this on a kindle fire so it takes ten forevers to wright. Sorry about any mistakes. This story has no beta so I'm doing my best.

Thought.

Disclaimer: I do not own winx club nor any of its characters.

>Bloom was nervous. The reason for her nervousness was because she was going to surprise her boyfriend on Eraklyon for his birthday. He had been extremely busy with his new duties as king and really stressed to the point where his parents were worried about him. They had called and asked her to help him out and of course she accepted. At the moment she was going to his area of the castle and was trying to calm down because it wouldn't do if she went there as a pile of nerves. She stood outside of his room for a good five minutes to collect herself... that is until heard voices and then her name. Now she didn't want to eavesdrop on her boyfriend but she couldn't help herself

"Ugh... why are you still with her? I thought you loved _me_ not _her!" _said a woman's voice. Now Bloom was thinking that Sky was cheating on her. She wouldn't surprised at all. After all he had done it before and they were in a long distance relationship and things like that were common. But she didn't think he would do it!

"Love please calm down and let me explain. I just haven't had an opportunity to break up with Bloom. The next time I talk to her I Will break up with her, I promise." Sky said in a placating tone as an effort to calm her down.

"Fine. As long as you promise" she responded.

"And I do. I love you Flora."

"Good cause I love you and I'm never letting you go." the now identified Flora said. _Wait what Flora as in Winx Club member, roommate, best friend, girlfriend to Helia, always loyal friend, fairy of nature. That Flora! _

Bloom couldn't take it anymore. She burst in with barely restrained fury and saw that it was indeed That Flora. In a deadly calm voice she said "What is going on here?"

Sky said with shock clearly written on his face "Bloom! When did you get here?!" at the same time that Flora said in an equally shocked voice "Bloom how..when...why are you here?

"To answer your questions," she said in a calm voice," I was here to help make Sky less stressed because your parents contacted me asking for help but I can clearly see that you already have enough help from Flora. And as for when I got here, I got here at just the right time to hear you say that you love each other and that you were planning on breaking up with me. Well you don't have to break up with me because I'm breaking up with you Prince Sky. I hope that you two understand that any and all friendship is gone now. Flora I you will not talk to me other then when necessary when we are in our shared dorm."

"Bloom please forgive me. Please I'm sorry." Flora begged.

"How could I ever forgive you? How?" Bloom screamed at her. "Did you ever think of the people you would be betraying when you did this? Sky you betrayed me and Helia as did you Flora? Why would you do this to your friends? How could you do this to your friends? I thought that you were both loyal, good, kind, and selfless but it turned out that you are the exact opposite. Go to Hell." Bloom then ran out of the room and out of the palace and then teleported back to Alfea. _Thank God Stella taught me how to do that otherwise I would be screwed._ Bloom ended up running into Helia on the way to the dorm. The one person who she both dreaded and wanted to see. _How will I tell him what Flora and Sky did?_
